

Paul` Letter to the Galatians : A Fourth - Century View:: Cramer` Catena of Commentary from John Chrysostom, Theodore of Mopsuestia, Severian of Gabala, and Eusebius of Emesa

Bill Berg

Cramers Catena of commentary from John Chrysostom, Theodore of Mopsuestia, Severian of Gabala, and Eusebius of Emesa Cramers Catena, a chain of comments on Galatians by fourth-century churchmen, is presented in colloquial translation faithful to the original ancient Greek some of it appears here for the first time in English. Featured first and foremost is the commentary by golden-mouthed John Chrysostom, with supplemental remarks from three other learned but more or less controversial figures of the same era, Theodore of Mopsuestia, Severian, and Eusebius of Emesa. Pauls epistle is approached through the twelve main topics into which it was divided in ancient times (division into chapter and verse being a much later phenomenon). The intent of the collection was to give Pauls readers new and eye-opening insights into the meaning of the letter. Todays reader will find those insights still fresh and, sometimes, provocative. Explanatory comments by the translator (usually covering technical issues relating to the Greek text) are restricted to footnotes. A brief Introduction prepares readers for what they will encounter in the Catena itself.
