Not illustrated. 1868 edition. Excerpt: ...arising to cause considerable delay in obtaining corrections in the preparation of the papers, it was thought better to postpone the printing of them until other documents could be prepared, so as to have them all bound together in one volume, with Mr. Peabodys letters relating to the foundation of the Institute, the Deed, Act of Incorporation, and Amend-ment of Charter, the amended By-Laws, the organization of the Library, and the letter of the VicePresident of the Board to Mr. Peabody, with the Treasurers general financial statement, thus completing a full account of the affairs of the Institute up to the 1st January, 1868. The building of the Institute fronts on Mount Vernon Place, in the centre of which rises the marble column of the Washington Monument. It is constructed of the same kind of white marble from the vicinity of Baltimore, and was commenced in the spring of 1858 and completed in 1861. The plan contemplates its extension to double its present dimensions. The preparations for its dedication having been made to harmonize with Mr. Peabodys arrangements, a deputation of the Trustees proceeded to Philadelphia to receive him and his friends and inform them of the programme that had been adopted. A special car was provided for their use by the Philadelphia and Wilmington Rail Road Company, and they were met at the Susquehanna River by the Board of Trustees of the Institute. On their arrival in the City, Mr. Peabody was received by the Mayor and City Council as the Guest of the City, and escorted to Barnums Hotel. On Thursday, the 25th October, 1866, the ceremonies of the dedication took place in the Lecture Hall of the building, where Mr. Peabody delivered the address now published. On Friday he received the children of the...
